

HIGH JINKS

"When I looked back the formation had scattered like ducks at the roar of a hunter's gun."

"Flying an airplane is a full-time job, requiring the pilot's undivided attention. A little horseplay now and then may be all right on the ground, but when you're flying you should forget all that foolishness."

Page Twenty-six